EVENT SITUATION

You are to assume the role of the Director of Corporate Sales for the TITAN ARENA, a large multi-purpose facility that is home to a professional basketball team and a professional hockey team. The General Manager (judge) wants you to develop a sales strategy to rent out the arena's luxury suites for an upcoming non-traditional sporting event.

Titan Arena is a staple in the city, known for hosting traditional sports, major concerts, and family ice shows. The arena has 50 luxury suites that are leased annually by large local corporations (banks, law firms, and manufacturing companies) for the basketball and hockey seasons. However, the arena has recently booked a massive three-day eSports tournament, the "Global Cyber-Clash," to take place next month.

The "Global Cyber-Clash" will feature the world's best video game players competing for a $2 million prize pool. The event is expected to sell out the general admission seating with a demographic of mostly 16-to-28-year-olds.

However, the luxury suites remain empty. The traditional corporate clients who usually lease these suites have declined to renew their lease for this specific weekend. They do not understand eSports, believing it is "just kids playing video games," and do not see the value in entertaining their clients at such an event.

The General Manager (judge) wants you to develop a sales pitch specifically targeting these traditional corporate clients to convince them to rent a luxury suite for the eSports tournament. The General Manager (judge) wants you to explain:

- Why this event offers a unique competitive advantage for their business networking compared to a standard basketball game.
- The features and benefits of a luxury suite specifically during a high-energy eSports event (e.g., technology integration, atmosphere).
- How to overcome their objection that "video games aren't a serious spectator sport."

You will present your ideas to the General Manager (judge) in a role-play to take place in the General Manager's (judge's) office. The General Manager (judge) will begin the role-play by greeting you and asking to hear your ideas

Possible Judge's Questions:

1. If our corporate clients still say 'no,' what other types of local businesses should we target for these suites?
2. How can we adjust the food and beverage menu in the suites to better fit the vibe of this specific event?
