EVENT SITUATION

You are to assume the role of a marketing coordinator for SUNDOWN SOUNDS, a three-day outdoor music festival held each summer. The festival director (judge) wants you to explain why attendance is falling and recommend a marketing strategy for next year.

SUNDOWN SOUNDS is entering its sixth year. Attendance peaked at 22,000 two years ago but fell to 17,500 last summer. A three-day pass costs $139. About 55% of attendees are ages 18 to 29.

A survey of people who attended in the past but skipped last year found:

- 38% said the ticket price was too high.
- 27% said the lineup wasn't exciting.
- 19% went to a competing festival held the same weekend two hours away.
- 16% gave other reasons.

The festival director (judge) has been approached by a regional credit union and a popular local energy drink brand about becoming festival partners. Several music creators with large local followings have also offered to promote the festival in exchange for free passes.

The festival director (judge) wants you to:

- Explain what a marketing strategy is and recommend one for next year.
- Explain how to target marketing messages to the festival's key audiences.
- Explain how influencers could help spread the word about the festival.
- Explain how partnerships with brands like the credit union and energy drink company could benefit the festival.

You will present your ideas to the festival director (judge) in a meeting at the festival office. The festival director (judge) will begin the meeting by greeting you and asking to hear your ideas. After you have presented your ideas and answered the festival director's (judge's) questions, the festival director (judge) will conclude the meeting by thanking you for your work.

Possible Judge's Questions:

1. What could we do to win back the fans who went to the competing festival?
2. Should we try to attract audiences older than 29, or focus on the fans we already have?
