EVENT SITUATION

You are to assume the role of an administrative assistant at SUMMIT PROPERTY GROUP, a company that manages apartment buildings. A coworker (judge) who was recently hired as an office coordinator is struggling and has asked you for advice.

The office coordinator (judge) schedules maintenance requests, answers tenant calls and processes lease paperwork. The coordinator (judge) also takes two evening college classes and picks up a younger sibling from school three days a week. In the first month, the coordinator (judge) has arrived late four times, missed a deadline for lease renewals and left voicemails unanswered for two days. The office manager has noticed and plans to meet with the coordinator (judge) next week.

The coordinator (judge) feels overwhelmed and wants you to explain how to manage time better, how to balance work with school and family, what employers expect from employees and how to show the manager that the coordinator (judge) is responsible.

You will present the information to the coordinator (judge) in the office after hours. The coordinator (judge) will begin the conversation by greeting you and asking for help. After you have presented the information and answered the coordinator's (judge's) questions, the coordinator (judge) will conclude the conversation by thanking you for your help.

Possible Judge's Questions:

1. Would it be okay to ask for a different schedule, or does that look like I can't handle the job?
2. How will I know if I'm meeting my manager's expectations without waiting for a formal review?
