EVENT SITUATION

You are to assume the role of a fraud prevention specialist at LAKESHORE FEDERAL CREDIT UNION. A member (judge) believes they have become a victim of identity theft and has asked for your help.

Three days ago, the member (judge) received a text message saying they had an unpaid highway toll balance of $4.15 and would be charged a $50 late fee unless they paid right away. The message had a link to a website that looked official. The member (judge) entered their debit card number. The next screen asked for their date of birth and Social Security number “to verify identity,” and the member (judge) entered those too.

Since then, the member (judge) has noticed the following:

- $612 in charges at an online electronics store on their debit card
- An email welcoming them as a new cardholder for a credit card they never applied for
- A notice from their wireless carrier that a new phone line was added to their account

The member (judge) also mentioned a few habits. They use the same password for their email and the credit union’s mobile app. They often check their account on the free Wi-Fi at their gym. They turned off the app’s fingerprint login because it was “annoying.” Yesterday, someone called claiming to be from LAKESHORE’s fraud department and asked the member (judge) to read back a code that had just been texted to them. The member (judge) hung up but isn’t sure whether the call was real.

The member (judge) wants you to explain how identity thieves get personal information, what steps to take right now to limit losses, and how to manage money safely on a phone going forward.

You will present the information to the member (judge) in a meeting at the credit union. The member (judge) will begin the meeting by greeting you and asking for help. After you have presented the information and answered the member’s (judge’s) questions, the member (judge) will conclude the meeting by thanking you for your work.

Possible Judge's Questions:

1. Should I freeze my credit or just place a fraud alert? What's the difference?
2. If someone calls saying they're from your fraud department, how do I know if it really is?
