4. Explain the nature and scope of the pricing function.
5. Discuss online guest reservation systems.

EVENT SITUATION

You are to assume the roles of the revenue manager and the director of sales for THE LANTERN HOTEL, a 260-room upscale hotel in downtown Harbor City. The general manager (judge) wants your team to recommend a room pricing and reservation plan for the week the city hosts a national college basketball championship.

Next March, Harbor City will host the championship for six days. City tourism officials expect 85,000 visitors, but the city has only 11,000 hotel rooms. THE LANTERN is a 10-minute walk from the arena. Its normal room rate in March is $219 per night, and the hotel usually runs about 72% full that time of year.

THE LANTERN has received mixed advice. A booking consultant says nearby hotels plan to charge 600–800 per night and require a four-night minimum stay. The hotel's sales team points out that a regional medical association has held its annual conference at THE LANTERN for 12 straight years, always during that same week, at a group rate of $189. The association's contract is up for renewal. Last year, guests posted angry online reviews about a different hotel that tripled its prices during a concert weekend.

The general manager (judge) wants a plan before the hotel opens reservations through its website and online travel agencies next month. Specifically, the general manager (judge) wants your team to:

- Explain how the championship will affect supply, demand and prices for Harbor City hotels
- Explain how a big event like this affects the local economy and the hospitality industry
- Recommend room rates and booking rules for championship week, including how to handle the medical association
- Describe how THE LANTERN should use its reservation systems to carry out the plan

You will present your recommendations to the general manager (judge) in a meeting to take place in the general manager's (judge's) office. The general manager (judge) will begin the meeting by greeting you and asking to hear your ideas. After you have presented your recommendations and have answered the general manager's (judge's) questions, the general manager (judge) will conclude the meeting by thanking you for your work.

Possible Judge's Questions:

1. Once the championship ends, what happens to demand and to our rates?
2. Should we charge what the market will bear, even if guests call it price gouging?
