EVENT SITUATION

You are to assume the role of a small business owner. You own “BITE-SIZED BAKERY,” a startup specializing in mini cupcakes and other bite-sized desserts. A new intern (judge) has joined your team and wants to learn about the importance of maintaining consistent production processes.

BITE-SIZED BAKERY is known for its creative mini dessert designs and flavors, including customer favorites like salted caramel cupcakes and red velvet brownie bites. The bakery has recently started receiving large orders for events such as birthday parties and school functions. Maintaining consistency in portion sizes, flavor quality, and presentation is essential to meet customer expectations.

The new intern (judge) has noticed that some team members measure ingredients differently and present desserts inconsistently. The intern has asked you to explain why consistent production processes are essential for the business's success.

You must explain the importance of standardizing production processes and share tips on how the team can ensure every dessert meets the same high-quality standards. Additionally, you should discuss how inconsistencies can affect customer satisfaction and the bakery's reputation.

You will present this information to the new intern (judge) in a role-play taking place in the bakery's kitchen. The new intern (judge) will begin the role-play by asking you about the importance of consistency. After you have presented the information and answered the intern's (judge's) questions, the intern (judge) will conclude the role-play by thanking you for your guidance.

Possible Judge's Questions:

1. How do you plan to train the team to ensure they follow the standardized production processes?
2. If a customer receives an order that doesn't meet their expectations, how would you handle the situation?
